Excerpt from Teeth Regulation: With Finely Made Original Devices Ready for Immediate Operative Application Without Soldering; Numerous Specific Illustrations If operators were now compelled to make from blanks bought at dental depots burs, excavators, pluggers, clamps, etc., and had to make a new one or lot for every operation they were called upon to perform, the filling of teeth would be a much more tedious and expensive operation than it now is, yet this is what has hitherto been done in nearly every case of dental irregularity dentists have been called upon to correct. After a long series of experiments in practical work the author has succeeded in performing with the regulating devices described in the following pages, all the operations usually met with in practice, and he claims for these devices the following advantages: First: They are ready to take out of the box and apply to the teeth. No heating or soldering is required. They are therefore as neat in appearance in the mouth as when removed from the box. Second: The several members are as small as is consistent with strength, they are well plated to resist tarnishment, are accessible in all situations, and are not liable to displacement or loss by the patient.
